

2020 ELECTION GUIDE

General Election

Early Voting: Oct. 13–30, 2020 | Election Day: Nov. 3, 2020

Cornerstone is pleased to provide this voter's guide to the 2020 general election. The purpose of this guide is not to influence voting but rather to provide information that will assist with research prior to voting.

This guide covers the Texas Congressional Delegation, the state Senate and the state House of Representatives. State-wide offices are not up for re-election in 2020.

The candidate lists show candidates from the major parties, Republican and Democrat. Full ballot information is available from your county elections office or the Secretary of State elections division.

CONGRESS

One U.S. Senate seat, held by John Cornyn, is up for re-election.

Texas has 36 seats in the U. S. House of Representatives; 25 are Republicans and 11 are Democrats. It is very unusual to have seven open seats in one election cycle but that is the situation in 2020. Six Republicans chose not to run for re-election and one Republican gave up his seat to join the Trump administration. Open seats are indicated on the candidate list. All seats have candidates from both major parties.

TEXAS SENATE

The Texas Senate has 19 Republicans and 12 Democrats. In 2020, sixteen of the 31 senators are up for re-election.

- 9 Republicans, 6 Democrats, 1 open seat
- 3 incumbents have no opponent or no opponent from a major party

TEXAS HOUSE

The 150-seat Texas House of Representatives has 83 Republicans and 67 Democrats. All seats are up for re-election. Over one-third of the candidates have no opponent or no opponent from a major party.

- 11 members, 3 Democrats and 8 Republicans, did not seek re-election.
- 14 do not face an opponent
- 38 have an opponent but not from a major party

KEY DATES

- Last day to request absentee ballot: October 27
- Early voting: October 13–30
- Election day: November 3
