A Letter From Our Founder

Tim Hagen
Founder,
Progress Coaching

Dear Attendee:

Your first instinct might be to balk when you hear of a man starting a women's leadership academy, so please allow me to explain my background and why this is different.

I was raised by a single woman, and almost 40 years ago, a woman changed the way I looked at my career through the delivery of coaching. As my boss at IBM during a college internship where I knew nothing of computers, she helped me discover and attain my passion for coaching. Without a great mentor and coach, I may never have had the confidence to pursue leadership coaching.

Thirty years later, I work with many companies around the globe and while we're making great strides to improve diversity and inclusion, we don't speak up enough about women leaders. There is still a significant gap in the amount of women in leadership roles, especially in corporate America.

My daughter works at Cornell University, and I've always tried to provide her insight as to what she'll experience in her career with leaders of all kinds. Before she started college, she began an internship with a great woman leader, who happens to be one of our speakers in WRLA. She was a publisher of a newspaper and my daughter was a journalism major, so it was an opportunity my daughter was beyond excited for. We both look back at that experience as a catalyst for her growth. I knew having a woman in a leadership position would serve my daughter in immeasurable ways, as I believe it would serve others as well.

Unconscious bias still exists which has held back many women I've worked with over the years, women who are extremely experienced and exceptional at what they do. This is exactly why I wanted to partner with the exceptional women leaders I've worked with to create the Women's Rising Leadership Academy. This program is a community of support and inspiration that will combine the following:

- Training
- Monthly group sessions facilitating awareness and action
- One-on-one coaching sessions per member by a certified coach
- Women guest speakers sharing their experience and advice to other woman leaders such as you

I hope you'll consider joining the Women's Rising Leadership Academy, an 18-month program where we are committed to helping you launch the career you desire.

Thank You,
Tim Hagen

Program Overview

Women's Rising
Leadership Academy

Presented by Progress
Coaching

Women are drastically underrepresented in executive management and C-suite levels across corporate America. Less than 26% (from McKinsey & Co). Yet more than $\frac{2}{3}$ of women under the age of 30 say they want to be senior leaders (LeanIn.org)

We're going to help change that. Women should hold more than 50% of those spots!

Together we can achieve it!

- Do you want to take your career to another level & shatter the barriers to your upward mobility?
- Are you passionate about helping other women reach their potential and overcome similar obstacles?
- Are you looking to join a community of women leaders who will help challenge the status quo and are finding ways to help eliminate those barriers?

We can do this together!!

Our community is eager for you and your colleagues to join!

Women's Rising
Leadership Academy

Presented by Progress
Coaching

Who are some of the Leadership Coaches offering 1-on-1 sessions?

- Kristin Miller - Owner/CEO & Certified Coach, Inicio Coaching
- Cindy Langanki - Certified Coach, Progress Coaching
- Tim Hagen - Founder/Owner & Certified Coach, Progress Coaching

What do the 1-on-1 sessions look like/cover?

- 6 Individual Virtual Coaching Sessions of 30 minutes each.
- Choose your own WRLA coach - each dedicated to the mission of empowering women to be the best version of themselves
- Sessions are specific to your needs, such as:
 - Effectively Managing Up
 - Having Difficult Conversations
 - Creating a Development Plan
- All Sessions are Private & Confidential

What do the Guest Speakers talk about?

- Prominent Women Leaders from all facets of life will share their stories of how they found success in their own ways
- Topics include leaders overcoming personal & professional challenges, and how they learned to lead others effectively

How long is the time commitment?

- This is an 18-month program that includes:

What makes WRLA different from other leadership development programs?

- We're community-driven and supported by fellow Women Leaders.
- All leadership and coaching training is conducted by certified coaches and prominent women leaders whose mission is to help women leaders.
- Our group coaching sessions drive inspiration and leadership, escalating motivation to help not only yourself but also those around you.
- Each session brings an inclusive mindset, dedicated to collaboration and supporting coaching strategies.
- All of us are passionate about the same goal: to increase women's skills, and leadership abilities and advance their careers to more senior positions.
- Most women's leadership development programs do not include 1-on-1 coaching sessions specific to the student's needs. We offer individual coaching as the cornerstone of our academy, and lifts our program above the rest!

How much is the tuition?

- If participants enroll prior to May 15, 2023, the early-bird tuition is $975 ($54/month).
- After May 15, 2023, the full tuition rate increases to $1,695 ($94/month).

This seems like a value compared to all of the other leadership development programs available - what's the catch?

- At Women's Rising Leadership Academy, we believe that access to the tools women need to advance their careers shouldn't be as difficult as the challenges they face. Making the academy accessible and affordable while providing the highest caliber value is important to us.

This is a powerhouse community forming and we'd love for you to join us. Together we rise! Apply for the Women's Rising Leadership Academy today!
